Florida NOW Activists Take Action to Celebrate Roe v. Wade

On January 18th, Florida NOW begins its week of action commemorating the 36th anniversary of Roe v. Wade . Throughout Florida, NOW activists will hold actions and events to celebrate the Supreme Court decision that made abortion legal for women throughout the U.S..

Though activists are excited to be celebrating the election of a pro-choice president, they also recognize there is much work to be done.

"We are excited that Obama has said he will protect Roe v. Wade. However, choice is often decided at the state level." said Florida NOW president, Jessica McCaffrey, "During this administration, we will continue our work to undo the erosion of choice in Florida and on the national level."

NOW chapters through out Florida will take action the week of January 18-24 to bring attention to the need for further activism on this issue. Look for NOW chapters around the state to honor the anniversary with lectures, rallies, and other events. Contact your local NOW to find out what's happening in your area. "It promises to be a great week." said McCaffrey.
